

Recovery and Resiliency

Magellan has partnered with national experts in behavioral health recovery and resiliency to offer e-courses for providers such as social workers, counselors, certified drug and alcohol counselors, consumers, family members and other stakeholders. These trainings are free of charge and were developed in collaboration with Recovery Innovation, Child Family Support Services, the Family Involvement Center, and consumers and family members. The content of this course is appropriate for beginning and intermediate skill levels.

Dr. Lori Ashcraft, Ph.D., Certified Psychiatric Rehabilitation Practitioner (CPRP) is the Executive Director of the Recovery Opportunity Center, located in Phoenix, Arizona. When META Services opened the Recovery Education Center in 2000, she became the Executive Director of its Recovery Education Center. In this role she promoted recovery principles and practices through training both staff and consumers. She is the author of two books, Offering Wellness and Advance Peer Practices. She is now recognized as a national leader in training people in recovery principles and practices and for her development of programs that help people move beyond recovery to find their own purpose and meaning in life.

Material in each class will include suggestions on what each of you can do to contribute to recovery. In this third class, "The Language of Recovery", you will learn how language we use can either help or hinder recovery. The learning objectives for this class are the following:

1. The participant will demonstrate the ability to use the power of the language of recovery to promote recovery.
2. The participant will give examples of messages of hope that focus on building strengths and resilience.
3. The participant will describe an example of using recovery conversations to promote wellness.

After each course you will be asked a few questions to help you assess your understanding of the content in this class. Successfully complete this test and you can print out a Certificate of Completion.
